Executive Committee Now Making Study After Big Meeting Last Friday Night. Stuart Rand Speaks.

Sons of Italy Ball In Town Hall Tonight

Arlington Lodge No. 1349 of the order of Sons of Italy in America, will hold its 18th annual ball at Robbins Memorial Town Hall in Arlington, this evening (Thursday) at 8 o'clock.

The proceeds of this affair are for the Charity Fund for the coming year.

The committee has engaged the music of the well-known 15-piece Arlison orchestra which is directed by that well-known band maestro, Augustus Mazzocco of Arlington, who has prepared a variety program of music and singing stars of the radio and stage—preceded by an hour of concert music so as to make the evening most enjoyable for all those who will attend.

There are to be several invited guests, including town and state dignitaries, as well as leaders of the Grand Lodge of the order, who already expressed their fullest intentions of being present for the occasion.

All indications point to a very successful evening socially as well as financially. The committee is headed by Sal Cannistraro and Fred Lucarelli, co-chairmen; Leonard Morasco, treasurer, and Michael Grove, secretary, assisted by a very able group of members of the Arlington Lodge.

Lobbies for Hobbies at Women's Fellowship

The first Hobby Show of the Woman's Fellowship of the First Baptist church was held on Monday evening in the social hall. On three sides of the large hall were displays by members, of their hobbies, and many rare and unusual exhibits of china, quilts and needlework.

The general chairman of the show was Mrs. Ernest E. Gustin. A "Hobby Lobby" was presented as an entertainment when the following exhibitors lobbied for their hobbies: Mrs. Harold Clare spoke of birds and bird houses, and had a fine display; Mrs. George Miller, tatting, and many beautiful pieces of her work were on display; Mrs. J. Clark Wyman told of collecting facts about carrillon bells; Mrs. Karl Place had about 160 salt and pepper shakers and told about several special ones; also, she is a stamp collector; Mrs. Andrew H. Stratton explained her collection of original drawings of clothing worn during the past twelve centuries, all drawings being her own work; Mrs. Benjamin Wells told how she makes barley candy and had with her a kettle and moulds a hundred and fifty years old and many samples of the candy; and Mrs. F. F. Hockaday, who conducts the Doll Hospital on Temple Place, Boston, exhibited a large and unusual collection of rare dolls. The interviews were conducted by Mrs. L. E. A. Smith, with apologies to Dave Elman.

Dr. Curtis Foye, who said his violin was his hobby, played several selections, which were much enjoyed. He was accompanied by Mrs. Carl Olsen at the piano.

Previous to the entertainment the regular monthly business meeting was held with the president, Mrs. J. Clark Wyman, presiding. It was announced that a joint guest night with the Men's Class would be held on Tuesday evening, February 13, and members were asked to get tickets early.

Later in the evening refreshments were served and the large number of members and guests lingered to examine the many fine collections exhibited.

Surprise Shower

A surprise shower to honor the bride, Mrs. Doris Torrey Bridgman, a graduate of Symmes Hospital Nursing School, was given last Saturday evening at the home of Margaret C. Glennon, 15 Alton street. Miss Mary Fitzpatrick and Miss Margaret C. Glennon were hostesses. Mrs. Bridgman was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. There were forty-five present, a great many of whom were from the Symmes Alumnae.

Accidents

Jacob Sirof of 79 Hibbert street was injured last Friday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile on Massachusetts avenue at Paul Revere road. The operator, John J. Nevins, of 37 Wollaston avenue, took the injured man to his home.

JUNIOR HIGH EAST WILL GIVE OPERETTA NEXT WEEK

To Present "The Beaver Trail" under Direction of Dorothy Evans Next Thursday Afternoon and Friday Evening.

For the past two months the students of several departments at Junior High East have been busily engaged in the preparation of an operetta called "The Beaver Trail" by George Murray Brown and Roy L. Stoughton. Under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Evans, teacher of music at the school, a cast of fourteen pupils, supported by choruses numbering seventy pupils, has been hard at work infusing themselves with the spirit, color and highly interesting temperaments of Mexicans and Indians.

The plot of "The Beaver Trail," an unusually interesting one, is built around the famous historical character of Kit Carson, played by Daniel Alexander and Chico, an Apache Indian Chief, played by Michael McGoldrick. Many of us recall reading, not so long ago, about Kit Carson, the brave intrepid trail and scout but we may not recall much about Chico. However,

Pension Group Produces Fine Minstrel Show

The popularity of old time minstrels was demonstrated by the large crowd that attended the show in American Legion Hall last Thursday evening, sponsored by National Old Age Pension Groups of Arlington, Cambridge, Malden and Woburn. Members of the various groups taking part in some of the special features and the chorus were assisted by other professional talent and radio stars, directed by Daniel D. Towse, of Woburn, with the Malden Group No. 1 orchestra furnishing the music throughout the evening, including dancing.

There were many interesting features, including tap dances, a comedy skit, tamborine act and a beautiful final tableau of Uncle Sam, Columbia and the Statue of Liberty. During an intermission William H. McMaisters gave a short talk explaining the fundamental principles of the organization and the political procedure planned to assist the National election this year. A large picture of Mr. McMaisters was unveiled during the singing of an appropriate song, composed and sung by John Osborn.

Other performances will take place in Malden and Woburn, and requests have been made to have it repeated in several other places and by various organizations. A large crowd attended the first performance in Cambridge last Wednesday evening.

Locke School Principal Dies in Rhode Island

ACCUSED STORE BREAKER CAUGHT

The young man accused of breaking into the Pappas fruit store at the corner of Broadway and Medford street last week and stealing eight dollars from the cash register, was arrested last Thursday by Lieutenant Charles Carroll and Officer John Hourihan. He gave his name as Timothy E. Sullivan of Somerville and is being held in $3,000 bail for the grand jury.

Lieutenant Carroll finally located a witness who had caught the boy crawling through the broken glass in the front door of the Pappas store but had let him go. He was able to give a description, however, together with information that led Lieutenant Carroll to believe that the thief lived in Somerville. "After that," he explains, "I let the bloodhounds loose and we got him."

DENY RETURN OF FLAMING YOUTH

Yet Plan to Present "Fireman Save My Child" During Park Ave. Youth Week.

Contrary to a recent comment, 1940 will probably not bring the return of "Flaming Youth." However, in 1940, on Saturday evening, January 27, (note change of date) at the parish house of the Park Avenue Congregational church, the old time melodrama will be revived by the presentation of "Fireman, Save My Child!" This melodrama is being presented by the Young People's Forum and will share the spotlight with a dance which will follow, sponsored by the youth week committee.

The cast, directed by Miss Florence Wilson, will be dressed in real old-time fashions. George S. Coburn, Jr., plays the dastardly villain, Chester Rubner, Jr., the valiant hero, Mary Wylie, the pitiful heroine, Betty Nicoll, the mother, Virginia Gavin, the village Gossip, Robert Jorda, a candid camera fiend, Helen MacAllister, the secretary at the mill, and Dorothy Anfantis, a maid.

Mrs. Charles Frederick is in charge of the make-up and Miss Barbara Swanson is the property chairman.

Tickets may be secured from the youth week committee co-chairmen, Miss Virginia Gavin and George S. Coburn, Jr.

Arthur Snyder, pianist, and Ellinor Benedict, cellist.

Following a reception there will be an exhibition of folk dancing given by Mlle. Letitia Brugnani and her international Folk Dancers, followed by dancing from 10-12 with swing music by the Aristocrats Dance Orchestra.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained from Mrs. J. J. Donahue, Mrs. Herbert A. Snow and Mrs. E. R. Brooks of Arlington. Mrs. F. U. Wyman, president of the Arlington Woman's Club, and Mrs. Arthur J. Mansfield, music chairman, are among the sponsors.

TWO PLAYS KEEP F. OF D. STAGE HOT WITH ACTION

"Guns Can't Think" and "Ladies in Linen" Get Warm Praise.

By E. C. Goodell and E. P. Anderson

On last Friday and Saturday evenings the Arlington Friends of the Drama presented two one-act plays, the first a short skit by Albert Barker, the other an original play by Parker Wood, a dramatization of a short story by Royce Howes. Heat, terrific heat, was the underlying motif of both plays.

Due to the bad weather on Friday night the little theatre on Academy street could not boast of a full house, but on Saturday evening there was a capacity attendance. On both occasions a responsive audience was rewarded by a highly entertaining program and given an opportunity to observe what makes the wheels go 'round in an amateur playhouse.

This type of play may not have as wide an appeal as a full-length production where the emphasis is on plot. It has to be appreciated primarily by those who are interested in theatre technique. The greatest value of the one-act play is that it relies on craftsmanship rather than story to hold the atten-

Trade Associates Propose Benches For Local Shoppers

The Arlington Trade Associates at the meeting of the advisory board held at Koford's Restaurant last week, voted to have an article inserted in the warrant for the annual town meeting to the effect that suitable benches be provided on the town property directly in front of the Central fire station, two benches on the Massachusetts avenue side and two benches on the Broadway side; also that similar benches be provided in the park between Robbins Library and Robbins Memorial Town Hall.

The reason for such an article is to provide suitable resting places

Navy Recruiting Hours Changed Here

"House Beautiful"

Channing Pollock's "House Beautiful," the play to be presented by the Arlington High School Dramatic Club on February 3rd, is most unusual in staging and theme. Its message is in the hands of two steadfast characters, Archie Davis, and his wife, Jennifer. It is the story of their house, founded on sacrifice, love, and honesty. The scenes, picturing periods and events in their lives, are projected by novel stagecraft, including two stages and unusual lighting effects. In spite of the menace of zoning laws, politicians, careless youth, and even death, they manage to keep their house beautiful. The excellent cast, carrying on the High School's high standards, includes Stephen Keefe, Catherine Iaconis, John Highland, Wilmer Hayes, Terry Shuman, Jean Mark, Barbara Birch, Richard Schober, Eugene Dente, Thomas Johnson, Julia Ioanna and Anita LeBlanc.

William J. Youngclaus, who had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Alfred Murphy, at 208 Broadway, for the past many years, passed away last Friday at Symmes Arlington Hospital in his eighty-ninth year. Mr. Youngclaus fractured his hip in a fall some six weeks ago, the accident hastening his death.

Funeral services were held at the Hartwell Chapel, 792 Massachusetts avenue, Sunday afternoon, and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Grady D. Feagan, pastor of the First Baptist church. Burial services were held the following day at the Moravian cemetery, New Dorst, Staten Island, New York.

ROBERT BYRON MOORE

Last week Tuesday marked the death of Robert Byron Moore, who was a well-known resident of this town a generation and more ago, his father, Samuel B. Moore, having been a long-time station master in Arlington Center in the days when the railroad was an important feature in the daily life of the whole town.

Mr. Moore was eighty years old. He left Arlington in 1908 when he founded the Moore & Cram Webbing Co., in West Acton and was the senior member of the concern at the time of his retirement ten years ago. A fractured hip hastened his death. Funeral services were held at West Acton last Thursday afternoon and burial was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, this town. ### Big Adult Class in Economics Formed

On Wednesday evening, January 10, at the Robbins Library, a free study and discussion group was formed to make a broad inquiry into the underlying causes for wars, unemployment, high taxes, labor troubles, and why poverty increases as wealth in total expands.

Those who enrolled were distinctly of the intellectual type and in sufficient numbers to guarantee a most interesting study group. There is room for a few more and readers of this paper are invited to grasp this opportunity to join. This free study group will meet each Wednesday evening at 7:15 p. m. for ten weeks.

The class director, Attorney Frank P. Metcalf, outlined a most interesting and comprehensive investigation of current world problems. He particularly emphasized that only through a complete understanding of the basic laws governing economics and social philosophy can any intelligent action be taken to correct the injustices which exist to the detriment of each individual and the forward expansion of the democracy of the United States. He pointed out that only through study and discussion shall we be able to avoid the mistakes of Europe. So lend your weight and your capabilities to this progressive movement. This is the American way.

The director also read the following letter from Winthrop L. Upton, who took the course of study at Winchester.

"May I write you briefly about the study course and discussion group in Fundamental Economics which I attended under the leadership of Morris Hand.

"The conclusions reached during this examination of the subject at first seemed to me to be quite impossible of practical application, even though as the study proceeded the logic seemed sound. This reaction led me to attend the next series under your leadership with the idea that with so many points cleared up I might locate the point or points where the logic was faulty. In the meantime I started an analysis of specific data to see how it would work in specific cases. Needless to say I have not yet found the 'bugs' I was looking for, and the result of my check-ups on actual cases has been to confirm the philosophy expounded at the discussion group meetings.

"If members of the groups can be led to think and use their terms accurately they will not only find Economics to be an exact science but a pleasant approach to the best that humanity wishes for itself. It eliminates all necessity for poverty amidst plenty and either economic war with its strikes, depressions and failures, or political war with its train of death and destruction.

"If traced to their sources most of the deplorable conditions among men will be found to originate in the fear of lack. With this fear wiped out in accordance with the suggested solution given at these discussion groups, these conditions would disappear for lack of a procuring cause.

"Many thanks for interesting me in attending these meetings and I sincerely recommend this course of study to all who desire to better economic conditions."

The readers of the Advocate are particularly invited to attend. There was a meeting last night and the next session will be on January 24. There are no examinations. Readers are urged to try it out for one evening and check for themselves. If the first session does not impress, there is no obligation to attend other meetings.

TWO PLAYS KEEP F. OF D. STAGE HOT WITH ACTION

tion of the onlookers, and thereby becomes a challenge to the ingenuity and ability of the group.

"Ladies in Linen" created an opportunity for testing new talent and presenting familiar players in new guises. The play itself is trite, so that if the cast was able to put it across convincingly, it certainly proves their ability to do bigger things in the future.

It must have required a great deal of concentrated effort and co-operation on the part of all concerned.

The cast seemed to have been picked with an amazing insight into what each person could do with her part. Jean Whitcomb, the hard-on-the-surface stage lady with the heart of gold; Anne Wooldridge, the nonchalant newspaper woman; Gladys Collier, the efficient nurse; and Ernestine Ware in glorious sun-tan makeup as the blase debutante; all share a genuine concern for the plight of the young wife, Sally Gale, played by Esther Knight.

Between them they persuade her to swallow her pride and call her husband in Ohio to tell him that she is willing to give up her career of music.

Mildred Anderson was thoroughly disguised in the role of the colored attendant.

Under the able direction of Beatrice vom Baur, assisted by Elinor Keane, this flimsy story became an entertaining bit of comedy, an effective contrast to the second offering of the evening.

"Guns Can't Think," the feature attraction, was a rousing success! It demonstrates once again Parker Wood's ability to pack a play with vivid drama.

The scene opens at night in the cell of a Texas jail where we find Skid, a cold-blooded killer who believes in letting his gun think for him. He and his Bible-ranting friend, Deacon, are about to be lynched by an outraged mob. Due to the quick and fearless action of Sheriff McNulty, who is determined to bring them to a just trial, they are saved from a lawless hanging. The following morning, Skid's girl, Dora Lawes, posing as his wife, is allowed to visit him. She has brought a gun with which he plans to make his escape and by the time the sheriff returns for her, they have plotted his getaway.

Realizing the superior courage of McNulty, the killer plans to shoot him dead when he brings the noon-day meal rather than face him in equal battle. Deacon, who has scruples about thus disposing of the man who saved their lives, is finally convinced that it is their only chance.

Meanwhile, the sheriff's little daughter, Mary, is left to play in the yard between the jail and the house while her mother prepares the prisoners' food. As the sheriff crosses the area with the dinner tray in his hands, Skid takes his stand opposite the door ready to fire. Just as McNulty is about to turn the key in the lock, Deacon screams and points to where a rattlesnake is rearing to strike at little Mary. Instinctively, Skid wheels toward the window and shoots the snake! For once his gun has thought straight.

At the sound of the shot, Mrs. McNulty bursts from the door with a shot gun aimed at the prisoners. As the sheriff enters, their last hope for freedom vanishes.

It is impossible in a brief review to give a complete analysis of the psychological implications of the play.

Under Myldred Trempp's guidance the cast gave such graphic portrayals of these characters as to make of them living persons rather than fictional figures.

Skid, the killer, is the study of a man whose only law is that of instinct. Ruled by his gun, he is powerless to think or act without it. When it is in his hand he has such faith in its ability to think for him, that friendship, love, or gratitude are nonexistent. Thus far in his life it has led him into a web of circumstance from which he cannot hope to extricate himself except by trusting it still further. Not until after he involuntarily saves the child's life by shooting the snake, thereby giving up his last chance for freedom, is his belief in it justified. It has at last made him heroic in spite of himself! Richard Robinson did a wonderful piece of work in this demanding role. He played this thoroughly loathsome character with such realism that he should not feel surprised if, in the future, mothers snatch their offspring from his path.

Arlington Gas Light Company

His performance was matched by the fine acting of Brenton Roberts, as Deacon, the partner in crime, whose religious prattle becomes terrified gibbering when Skid's impulsive act seals their doom.

Dauntless Sheriff McNulty was expertly drawn by Dow Pickering. His deliberate draw never varied and intensified the stable nature of the quick-thinking arm of the law.

The roles of the two women in the cast were a study in contrasts. Emma Cartmel made up in quality of work what she lacked in quantity of lines as the sheriff's wife, whose indomitable spirit adds to her husband's courage. Grace Shay gave a spirited portrayal of Dora, the hard-boiled gun-moll.

Little Joan Wallace made her stage debut on the evening of her ninth birthday in the part of the sheriff's daughter, Mary. Her stage presence and clear speaking voice might well be the envy of many veteran players.

We were much impressed with the effective single set which neatly solved the problem of presenting the action inside and outside the cell simultaneously. The transparent back wall gave us the impression of being able to see out around the prison rather than through it to watch the scenes laid in the yard.

All credit is due Barbara Llewellyn and the stage committee for the execution of the sets in both productions. They deserve a great deal of praise for a very professional job which contributed much to the success of the program.

FURTHER COMMENTS

By Joseph Hoar

Parker's Play

How Mr. Wood felt, one doesn't exactly know. But when that last call of "Two minutes!" sounded and the lights began to dim; and there pealed from behind the closed curtains an orchestration of solemn, gripping music, like Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, it is doubtful if he, or any other author could stand behind that curtain unmoved. But Mr. Wood has already penned four other plays and is hardened to these prime moments in any playwright's life; and for that reason this sentimental trash should be poured in the waste basket. Ten to one, Parker was busy sawing planks for his forth-coming "Night Must Fall."

"Guns Can't Think"

The staging will undoubtedly revolutionize future shows. The lighting also. The transparent wall idea, it is believed, has never been used before on any stage. The blackout was not only timely, but marvelously effective. Then, too, there was a life-like rattlesnake, a well-decorated little girl player and some of the neatest heavy dramatics of many a melodramatic moon.

Brenton "Buck" Roberts was the Deacon and he was a delight to the eye and to the ear as well. In a play that was all too short, Buck painted a character that really glued to the memory. A strange cuss this Deacon. And that long speech of his, Buck delivered while the ticket-buyers sat with baited breath. Even without the high caliber of his fellow players Mr. Roberts could still have carried the play.

Surprise number one was Grace Shay. As toughy Dora Lawes, gun-moll of the lawless Skid, Grace proved she was wasted in the nurse bit of "The Royal Family." In her one scene she made her mark and uttered her hard gal lines with convincing gusto.

As Sheriff McNulty began to cannonade away with those two smoke poles of his, he boosted his portrayal, Dow Pickering, right up with the top actors of this or any other club. Not only was Dow decked out in colorful western regalia, but he lived his part. Not a bit of over-playing from Two-gun Pickering, however, and his scene with Mary whom he calls "kitten," is really a touching bit of make-believe. In fact, the only thing out of the way about Dow was the fact that he wore two right-hand revolver holsters. Anyone who played cowboys ardently as a boy would keenly enjoy detecting this item.

Joan Wallace's Debut

Emma Cartmel, in the limited bit of McNulty's wife, was a real homespun western wife. Little Joan Wallace, was all of the sensation expected. Not once did she look out front. She did her intricate business naturally and crept into many a heart. Instead of saying "Thank you" to her Sheriff father when he gave her a ten cent piece, she said, "Ten cents, that's right, Mister." Three other members of the speaking cast were authentic Alden Weimar, realistic Robert Farmer and the much-used Nelson Berry as Lyncuers Number one, two and three.

The extras, who had a Roman holiday in this, were: Edward Mansfield, Gordon Saunders, Carl Fowler, Richard Howe, Norman Downes, Elliott Hannah, Parker Wood and George MacGray.

My's Direction

Myldred Foley Trempp, director spectacular and director unobtrusive, can chalk up "Guns Can't Think" as another success in line with her lengthy line of towering triumphs. Give Chopin a piano. Give Myl a play. It's the same difference.

Lighting

If there was ever seen a scene more beautiful than that one preceding the blackout, of a beautiful Texas night, then it must be the exquisite night scene of "The Outsider." Both are incomparable.

Barker's Play

Albert Barker wrote "Ladies in Linen," and Beatrice vom Baur directed it with scene laid in a hot room of a Turkish bath for women in New York early Sunday morning. It is a sort of sweaty Grand Hotel.

Credits

Parker Wood designed the sets for "Guns Can't Think." Stage Manager Barbara Llewellyn designed the "Ladies in Linen" set and built everything from the snake to the adobe. Sound effects were by Malcolm Stewart, who also did the superb lighting and music. Barbara also handled the prompting. Eleanor Mansfield, Edward Mansfield, Norman Downes, Edward Robinson, Margaret Hall, Betty Goodwin, Richard Howe, and Paul White assisted in the stage work. Beatrice Ring, the prop queen, Laura Sampson, Marion Anderson, Alice Frederick, and Alice Wallace handled properties. Miss Hall did costumes and Anne Kennedy, Miriam Cahalin and Lillian Snow made up the play actors. Barbara Erickson, Edna Dennen, Anita Le Blanc, Louise Hall, Ann Trowbridge and others handled the candy. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Caulkins, Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Sisson, Ruberta Bailey, and Barbara Sears were the hosts and hostesses, while ushers were Barbara Jarvis, Betty Kennedy, Joan Fowler, Christine Cartmel, and Muriel Moran.

After the last performance the casts of the two-plays and all connected therewith, plus scores of friends gathered at the Arlmont Country Club for a well-planned celebration conducted by Barbara Llewellyn, assisted by Eleanor Mansfield and Helen Center.

Local Auto Repair Partners Active at Old Mill St. Stand

Since they have been repairing automobiles for Arlington owners for the past sixteen to eighteen years, Pat Doucet and Med Chaisson, proprietors of the Mill Street Garage at No. 17, near the brook, have a wide and faithful following of satisfied customers.

Messrs. Doucet and Chaisson have always plied their trade in Arlington, working for one garage owner or another, but for the past three years have been in business for themselves. In spite of its comparative newness, their shop is a familiar port for repairs to a large percentage of their clientele, for both had worked at No. 17 Mill street for many years for a previous owner.

Both partners were born in Canada, and the elder, Mr. Doucet, served with the Canadian forces all during the war of 1914-18. He is married and the father of five children. Mr. Chaisson was born in 1903, so missed active service in the war. He has been in this part of the country for the past twenty years, is married and has two children.

Treasurer Hardy Gives Talk on Arlington

Yesterday morning on the "Parade of Cities" hour conducted by one of the big Boston department stores, Town Treasurer Charles A. Hardy gave a most interesting talk on "Arlington of Today", approaching his subject from a well-laid historical background. Besides his official duties, Mr. Hardy is vice-president of the Arlington Historical Society.

counsel, Attorney Martin R. Durkin.

At the annual meeting a week ago, four directors were elected by the association to hold office for three years. They were: William P. Shine, past president; Martin R. Durkin, L. Harry Howe, and Joseph P. Dente.

The association is now in its fourth year of civic accomplishments, working at all times for a better Arlington. The cooperation of its officers, board of directors and members has, it is believed, done much toward fulfilling the aim of the organization in aiding the residents of the town to protect their property and their rights along the lines of being good neighbors.

Automobile Dealers Employ Arlington Auto Body Shop

Down on Alewife Brook, just off Broadway, on Sunnyside avenue, the last street in Arlington, or the first street, depending on which way one is headed, is the Hanson & Tilton auto body shop, patronized by practically every automobile dealer in this town together with a host of private customers.

The shop is not at all conspicuous from Broadway, but for the man who wants a job done with real old world thoroughness it is worth hunting for. Partners Hanson and Tilton both received their technical training in the old country and both worked for many years in the same auto body plant in Boston, specializing in the highest grade of work. In 1936 they decided to go into business for themselves and established their own shop in Arlington. Since then their business has increased with the steadiness that bespeaks of a satisfied clientele. When this reporter visited them the other day, the shop was jammed with cars, all in various stages of re-finish, and a sizeable corps of skilled operators, hard at work.

ADLER M. HANSON

The younger partner, Adler M. Hanson, received his training in Sweden, having been born there in 1909. Since coming to this country in 1927 he has been constantly in the auto body business. He has closely identified himself with Arlington in the four years he has lived here and is a member of the Arlington Viking Club. He makes his home with his wife and daughter at 119 Rhinecliff street.

At the other end of the partnership is Arvid F. Tilton, who has been developing his skill as an auto body specialist ever since he came to this country in 1913. As a lad of seventeen he came to New England from Latvia, the country of his birth. That was a long time ago, but needless to say, he has no affection for the Russian and is very proud of what his former neighbors, the Finns, are doing in the hard north country.

Arlington's Oldest Auto Man Reports Big Business Jump

All these reports from outside indicating better business conditions are pleasant enough, but favorable figures are even more pleasant to listen to when they spring right from the home grounds. Wilmer G. Tenney, Arlington's Hudson dealer, throws a strong light on the local situation with the statement that his sales for the first quarter since the introduction of the 1940 Hudson in September have already equaled his entire new-car volume in 1938 and greatly exceeds 1939.

These figures are even more authoritative when it is understood that they come from Arlington's first successful automobile dealer. Mr. Tenney first opened his automobile business here in 1913 and he is going stronger than ever now, after twenty-six years. He started in the Colonial Garage, then Chase's garage, but for the past dozen years has occupied his own spacious quarters at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Mill street, where he has a big show room with garage underneath and behind. He has kept his end of the business apace with the growth of the town and the development of the industry. In the course of his long business life he has made countless friends, too, and these are not by any means confined to the Arlington Chamber of Commerce or the Arlington Rotary Club to which he belongs.

Mr. Tenney's report for the first quarter is in line with Hudson business all through the country. Substantial sales gains made by the Hudson Motor Car Company during the past year were cited this week by George H. Pratt, general sales manager, in support of a favorable view of the business outlook for the coming year.

Disclosing that total retail sales of new Hudson cars for the last quarter of 1939 amounted to 28,900 units which, in the United States, represented more than double the company's sales for the same period a year ago, Mr. Pratt declared that these gains typified the company's progress since the introduction of the 1940 models.

"Hudson has already shipped more 1940 model cars to dealers in the United States than were shipped in the entire 1939 model season," Pratt stated in reviewing the significant highlights of the company's growth and progress for the year. "Shipments of new Hudson cars for the 1939 calendar year totaled $2,100 units, representing a gain of 61% over 1938.

"Still more significant is Hudson's steady gain in percentage of AMERICA GIVES THANKS—The sentiment of a nation, rich in the harvest of peace and the goodness of life, is echoed in a stirring testimonial to the "American Way" by the House of Seagram for the Thanksgiving Holiday. Photo shows a typical American gazing across New York bay at the Statue of Liberty, while the testimonial states: "Under the American Way this country has produced a higher standard of living than is enjoyed in any other country in the world. No 'black bread'—no 'thin soup'—no synthetic foods will grace our Thanksgiving pie. Instead, roast turkey, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings of a holiday feast." The House of Seagram takes this occasion to express its confidence in the "American Way." We wish you and yours a bountiful Thanksgiving—celebrated in the traditional manner—with the finest of food and drink—but observed with the wisdom of moderation.

Baby Robin proves adaptable in training—He seems to dislike the odor of Mr. Kuehl's pipe judging from the position of his head.

ARLINGTON'S OLDEST AUTO MAN REPORTS BIG BUSINESS JUMP

The entire industry business since the introduction of the 1940 models. Compared with the first 6 months of 1939, current retail sales show that Hudson's percentage of the entire industry sales has more than doubled.
"The answer, of course, is found in the cars themselves. Such widespread impetus is only a reflection of public interest in the product. The history of the industry records several similar spontaneous demonstrations of public response to values. In each case a definite cycle of growth and expansion has followed. It is, therefore, only natural that we at Hudson look forward to even greater progress during the coming year," Mr. Pratt asserted.

Arlington Shuts Out Exeter, 3-0

Johnny Spinner was in rare form last Wednesday afternoon and the Arlington High hockey team blanked a potentially strong Exeter unit, 3-0. Coach Downs used his entire squad in order to give the boys experience under fire. Art Blanchard was the big gun in the Red and Gray onslaught, hammering home two goals. He was assisted by Captain Sanders on both markers. Donny Moore poked in the third score on an unassisted effort.
The boys had a fine trip and the victory made it all the more pleasant.

DOWNSKATERS COME BACK TO BEAT BELMONT 5 TO 1

Blanchard and Sanders Star in Victory Rump. Arlington Must Beat Newton for Success in Title Defense.

Coach Charlie Downs' puck-chasers made a very rapid recovery Saturday afternoon at the Boston Arena and drubbed a fighting Belmont six, 5-1. The Belmonsters were outclassed from start to finish by the fast-skating Menotomy Towners, who really meant business from the opening face-off. Art Blanchard returned to the lineup and added a great deal of punch by smacking in the first goal and covering up well on the defense. As usual, Captain Bobby Sanders was in top form, flooring the red light twice and feeding Blanchard a pretty pass for the first goal. Ed Burns was playing hard hockey all the way and managed to get two assists as well as a goal. Don Moore scored the first goal of the season for the second line on a solo effort midway through the last period.
Newton gave enough evidence to this writer to venture to name them as Arlington's successor to the throne. They whipped a sad Medford team 9-4, thus remaining in a tie with Melrose for the top position. Unless Arlington can upset these clever Orange and Black team, we see nothing in their path to victory. Melrose kept pace with Newton by outsmarting the Cambridge Latin representatives, 4-1, in the opener. Stonham eked out a close win over Rindge, 2-1, in the other contest. This game was marred by another serious injury—a brain concussion to Eddie Phaneuf, Tech right winger. His helmet was knocked off after a hard check by the Stonham defense and the back of his head met the ice with a solid impact.
Blanchard had tallied before the Belmont boys knew they were playing a hockey game. Burns had carried into the corner but had lost the disc. Sanders picked it up and slid a pass across the mouth of the cage to Art who had little trouble beating Boudry. The time of this tally was 1:46. Less than a minute after Sanders whipped in a Burns rebound and it looked like an Arlington romp. Arlington was short-handed twice toward the end of the period, when both Blanchard and Connolly were exiled, but they managed to resist the pressure.
The middle chapter saw Sanders score again, this time while Blanchard was in the cooler. He was fed a pass at the Arlington blue line by Burns, skated his way to the cage and then pulled Boudry out of the drapes to score at 8:33. Moore had a sweet opportunity to flash the light toward the end of the twelve minutes, but Boudry refused to make a move and he came up with a great stop. Belmont was swarming around the Arlington cage during the greater part of the time, and Goalie Spinner was forced to kick out several shots that appeared to be labeled.
Phil Talbot registered the only Belmont score shortly after the final stanza opened. He and Sullivan got a partial break and Sullivan smashed a shot which Spinner just managed to block. John had no chance to stop the rebound and Talbot had spoiled a shut-out. Moore snared the puck about center ice at 4:10, and breezed in alone on the enemy fort. He evaded defenseman Guthrie and slid a backhander into the front corner. Eddie Burns rang up the final score at 8:10 after a scramble in front of the Belmont cage. Boudry's view was blocked and he didn't even get a chance to take a dive at the shot. Coach Downs yanked Spinner and played Dick Davis during the last few minutes. The third and fourth lines took over and continued to press the Belmont goal. Roger Duffy had a great opportunity but his bid was thwarted by a smart save.
This was a greatly improved Arlington team. The feeling existed that over-practice was the cause of the defeat last week, even though key men were missing. Carl Rohde and Tom Connolly showed a marked improvement on the Arlington blue line and before the season is over they should form a strong combine.

After three minutes Glennon countered with a high shot to put his team in front by a single point. The Arlington fans continued to howl when Twinkle dropped a pair from the foul line, but this is as far as they could go. Murray dropped a difficult push shot and then Fortin sank a long one to return the advantage to Medford. Cud Tobin missed a pair of foul shots and then Paturrelli dropped in a free throw. With a minute and twelve seconds remaining Medford checked very tightly and all Arlington could do in the way of scoring was a one-pointer by Isner.
The Medford seconds put an abrupt end to the supremacy of the Arlington seconds by whipping them 30-17.

MEDFORD HALTS LOCAL QUINTET TO WIN BY 3 POINTS

Close Guarding Repells Arlington's Late Surge. New A. H. S. Star Uncovered.

Last Friday evening in the Lowe Auditorium, a fighting Medford High basketball team upset the Arlington hoopers, 31-28, before a full house. The game was a thriller from start to finish and was never decided until the final whistle. Medford played good basketball and earned its victory, but we feel that Arlington had the better club.
Again the locals were badly off the form they displayed in trouncing Watertown, missing any number of comparatively easy shots. The bright spot in the Arlington loss was the debut of sophomore Carl Cullerton as a first team forward. He was moved up from the second team squad in place of Frankie Simmonds and got his chance midway through the contest. He looped two baskets, one a pretty one-hander from the corner. Immediately Medford switched guards and kept an eagle eye on the youngster through the remainder of the game. His defensive play was little shy of perfect, but there is a certainty that he will see a lot more action before the curtain rolls down on the present campaign.
With Medford ahead, 22-14 at the half, the third period was probably the most exciting from an Arlington standpoint. The boys came out with fight in their eyes and held the opposition to a measly four points while they piled up eleven. Cullerton took a pass from Knight and dribbled the length of the floor to start the local surge.
Isner made good a foul shot, but Ferrus dropped a long shot. Cotter sank a rather difficult close-up shot but a few seconds later he missed an open and shut basket. Isner tallied on a pass from Ryrholm and then Cud Tobin swished a looper from mid-court. Murray broke the Arlington rush with a beautiful shot but Isner tapped in a rebound to make the count 26-24. Russ then dropped a foul shot and a couple of seconds later he had a chance to put Arlington in the lead with two free tosses. Both were strong and Medford had the scant margin of one point going into the final session.

A. H. S. Track Team Outruns Watertown

Arlington High opened its 1940 indoor track season by defeating Watertown in a close and exciting meet on the new indoor track here. Alexander and Belinowicz of Arlington captured 1st and 2nd in the 20-yd. dash. Ryrholm (A) outclassed the field in the high jump; Linekin (A) put the shot nearly 45 feet, easily outclassing the field, and the relay team won by virtue of a swell third leg by Flynn. Zabulla (W) defeated Campbell (A) in the 600, after a spirited race. Everett (W) was the class in the 1000-yd. The summary:
20-Yd. Dash—1st, Alexander (A); 2nd, Belinowicz (A); 3rd, Russo (W).
300-Yd. Dash—1st, Ruggiero (W); 2nd, Harris (A); 3rd, Kelley (A).

A. H. S. Five Loses Another Thriller

In another one of those hair-raising battles which last through the final whistle, Newton High School edged out a 29-27 victory over Arlington Tuesday afternoon in the local gym. This is the third game in a row that the Red and Gray have been nosed out of in the late moments, and again they might easily have scored a win. From the foul line alone they missed exactly eleven shots. Tommy Cotter muffed a couple of simple shots but still came out of the fray as leading scorer with thirteen points.
The biggest disappointment from an Arlington glance, aside from the loss, was the fact that Captain Twinkle Glennon was shackled so closely by Johnny Olivieri that he failed to score a single point. Red Tobin started at center for Arlington and did a great job, guarding All-Suburban Johnny Flagg. The Newton captain was able to score only one basket while Red was in the ball game and Tobin himself hung up six points. Cud Tobin also broke into the opening lineup, replacing Knight, and while he is not a polished performer, Cud was in there fighting all the time. Ducky Holmes and Olivieri were the main factors in the Newton victory with both dropping pretty shots at very crucial moments.
Newton had a strong second team which proved to be too fast for Arlington. Warner's boys held a lead early in the game but finally succumbed, 23-15.

Next Week

Coach Charlie Downs' hockey team has what should prove to be a soft touch on their schedule for Saturday afternoon at the Arena. They come up against an inferior Medford team in the last game on the card. Arlington cannot afford to lie down on the job however, because anything can and does happen in schoolboy hockey.
The basketball team will make a strong bid to win its first league contest Friday night at Rindge. Tech trounced Brookline Tuesday by a 34-25 count and so it looks like Arlington will have its hands full. They are about due to come out of their slump. The contest will get under way about eight, with a second team game starting at 7:30.
Tuesday afternoon a potentially strong Waltham club makes its appearance in Arlington. The Watch City boys have a veteran squad but received a jolt this week when Cambridge Latin set them back, 35-24. The league looks to be well balanced and Arlington is still in the fight but they must take advantage of all opportunities.

Capitol Theatre Makes More Renovations

Movie going patrons of the Capitol Theatre, Arlington, are discovering that the newly redecorated men's and ladies retiring rooms are the latest word in comfort and taste.

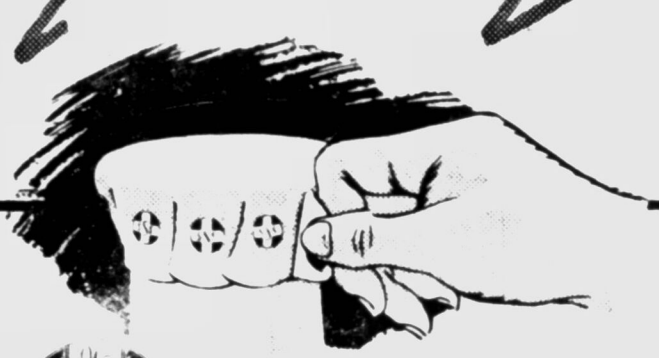

Standard Theatres Supply Company, decorators for most of New England's most modern theatres, have just completed their redecoration of the retiring rooms at the Capitol. Some of the features of the retiring rooms include walls that are done in Gold damask, new indirect lighting, and new ventilating systems.

Manager Parker states that this is just another feature in his renovations program with which he hopes to make the Capitol Theatre the favorite movie house of this section.

TOWNSEND CLUB

A most enjoyable evening was sponsored by Arlington Townsend Club No. 1, in Robbins Memorial Town Hall last Wednesday, when Robert Adams, a Los Angeles business man, gave an outline of the Townsend Plan. Mr. Adams said he would make a specific point of his discussions, the misconception that the Townsend Plan proposes $200 a month. "As soon as we can get the general public to realize that the Townsend Plan proposes payment of annuities amounting only to a pro-rata share of the total revenue collected under the 2 per cent transaction tax and not a flat $200 a month he said the majority of our people will swing in behind the Townsend Plan."

A penny sale held Tuesday evening in Legion Hall was well attended. The drive for new members is reported very successful.

COMMUNITY CLUB

A regular meeting of the Community Club of Arlington will be held next Thursday, January 18, at 6:45, with supper by Roy Hamilton. Business will include election of officers for 1940, as follows: President, Roy Fogarty; vice-president, Frank M. Taylor; treasurer, Earl A. Ryder; secretary, Stuart N. Hotelling.

VARIA STUDY CLUB

The next meeting of the Varia Study Club will be held on Monday, January 22, at the home of Mrs. Edward Center, 145 Mt. Vernon street. The program will consist of two papers on American history, written by club members. Mrs. Stanley Gove will read her paper entitled "America secedes from the Empire." This will be followed by Miss Helen Irwin, who has called her topic "A Nation Finds Itself." In these times of strife in the European nations it has seemed proper for the members of the Varia Club to take the time to look back briefly upon our own country's history.

ST. MARY'S CLUB

The bi-monthly meeting of St. Mary's Club for young mothers was held on Friday, January 12, in the parish house of the Church of Our Saviour.

The group was organized in the fall of 1939 for social and educational purposes, and has met with a marked degree of success. A very interesting and informative talk on "The Reasons for Mothers' Clubs" was given by Mrs. Roy E. Coombs of Belmont. Mrs. Coombs was formerly president of the "Mothers' Club" at the Payson Park Church and offered many valuable suggestions.

A social hour followed; tea was served by Mrs. James Evans and Mrs. Charles Larden, assisted by hospitality chairman, Mrs. M. Payne.

The next meeting of the group will be a pre-Lenten Tea to welcome new members on Friday, January 26th, at 2:45 p. m. at the parish house. All members and friends are cordially invited to attend.

SOCIAL ALLIANCE

The Social Alliance of the Unitarian church held its monthly program meeting in the church parlors Monday, with the mothers of the children of the church school as guests.

Mrs. Bixler, speaking on "The Jews and Arabs in Palestine," told in a very interesting manner the effect on the Arabs of the emigration of Jews to Palestine, a country in which the Arabs had lived for 1300 years.

She told of the adjustments that had to be made, and the culture the Jews brought into the country from the first years of their taking over the poor farms and making them fertile, up to the present time when so many thousand educated Polish, German, Jewish, refugees—engineers, doctors, and teachers—have fled to Palestine because of the Hitler regime. A lively question period followed.

THE UNPALATABLE TRUTH

Late last year a commission of experts, headed by Samuel Crowther, prepared and published what is believed to be the first attempt to show the fiscal condition of any commonwealth by means of the balance sheet and income account method used by large corporations. Public and private assets and liabilities were included.

The state selected was New Hampshire, at the request of its governor and legislature. The facts produced by the balance sheet must have come as a shock to New Hampshire people. It showed that the creation of purchasing power through government spending was an absurdity; that unemployment is being generated by the very measures taken to cure it, and that taxation is reducing small incomes as well as large. Most startling of all, the audit indicated that the people of New Hampshire, as a whole, have no net savings because their thrift is being smothered by governmental debt. Though they saved individually in the year audited, they grew poorer collectively because of governmental and business losses.

It would be a fine thing for this country if the fiscal affairs of every state were subjected to dispassionate, business-like audits such as this. The chances are that most of the commonwealths would find, to their amazement, that they are worse off than New Hampshire. We have done so much talking about spending ourselves into prosperity that we have forgotten that uncontrolled government spending, with the inevitable mounting deficits, is a sure road to poverty.

The fact is that the people know next to nothing about the various government taxing authorities that tax them. Politicians are always wary of being accurate and business-like when it comes to showing the voters just what is happening to their money and their property. And the people, for lack of knowledge, have blindly followed the economic medicine men—and at what a cost!

New Hampshire is to be congratulated on its survey. May it profit from it. And may the other 47 states, to say nothing of the Federal government, follow suit. The truth may be unpalatable, but it has to come out.

THE YEARS OF THE LOCUST

One of the most eventful decades in modern history has ended. And this nation enters a new decade during which, unless all signs are wrong, its people must face and grapple with problems, issues and responsibilities of the most far-reaching character.

The 1930's will be known to the historians of the future as the years of one of the greatest and longest depressions this or any other nation ever experienced. They will be known as years of experiment, of trial and error, of the weighing of our old values and our old traditions. And they will be known too as years in which the democratic process was consistently attacked by some of those who called themselves its friends, as well as by those who were its frankly avowed enemies.

From the international point of view, the tragic '30's came to a cynically fitting end in that most ghastly and unnecessary of events—a war which embraces much of the world. In nation after nation the arts of peace have of necessity been put aside, to the end that war may be prosecuted to the utmost. And war destroys more than men and materials and machines and economies and states. It destroys those essential liberties for which men have fought and died in holy causes ever since the world we know began. It destroys those spiritual values which are at the root of all artistic, cultural and humanitarian achievement. It has been truly said that in modern war there can be no victors—there are only the vanquished. It is an ironic commentary on the times in which we live that those nations which are fighting this war in the name of threatened democracy, have been forced to use the methods of the dictators in order to meet the enemy on its own totalitarian terms.

The greatest blessing which this nation possesses today is its physical remoteness from the conflict abroad. That is a position enjoyed by no other of the world's major powers. There is profound wisdom in the attitude of the great majority of the American people who say, in effect—"We can keep out of war—and we will keep out of war." There is no war party in this country—no responsible statesman urges our participation. We can all feel a deep and abiding thankfulness that this is so. Never before was it so important that we Americans keep our heads in order that we may also keep our liberties. For should this country become involved in war, democracy would vanish here, as swiftly and as surely as it has vanished abroad.

We have plenty to do at home during the years that stretch ahead. The current Congress and those which follow have their work cut out for them—but satisfactory results will be secured only if the people as a whole are awake and watchful, are conscious of their needs, are deeply aware of their American heritage and way of life. For in spite of the unproven claims of extremists, our only real progress has come from productive, employing industry, working under the American system of free enterprise which brought us from a minor power to a world power in a century and a half.

Here in America we have all that is needed to bring a greater prosperity than we have ever known—the industries, the men, the resources. But unless we maintain our basic liberties, material blessings mean nothing.

—Professor and Mrs. Warren A. Seavey of 187 Pleasant street are giving a dinner party at their home tomorrow evening, for a group of members of the faculty of the Harvard Law School.

—The Sowers Lend-a-Hand Club were delightfully entertained at the College Club at their last meeting, the guests of Miss Marion Hatch. Mrs. Guy Sanger is the president of the Sowers Club.

WOODCUTS

According to the Boston Globe, the title of one of the plays produced by the Friends of the Drama last week was "Guns Can't Think." They must be confusing us with Gus Mazzocca, father of seven daughters, and recently the father of his first son. No wonder he can't think.

Beatrice vom Baur, who coached one of the two one-act plays presented by the Friends of the Drama last week, was describing the plays to a fellow worker at lunch in Boston the day before presentation when she was arrested by an excited exclamation from her companion who was stuck with the fact that the plot of "Guns Can't Think" was practically identical with a short story written by the husband of her best friend and published in the Saturday Evening Post.

Which goes to show that you can't get away with anything. No one would ever guess that a writer who lives in Detroit would ever hear about a one-act play produced by an amateur organization in Arlington, Massachusetts, but hear about it he did. We would have heard from him, too, in no uncertain terms, if we had not placed on the program—"From a short story by Royce Howes."

Now that renovations are nearly complete at local police headquarters, a real press room has been opened for the use of Arlington reporters. We had the honor of being first to use the room, but soon found that there was a joker involved. The chair at the desk had a wide crack running down the center and that crack closed with direct effect as soon as our no inconsiderable weight was firmly established. Which proves that you have to go right to headquarters to get really pinched. Anyway, we furnished Lieut. Al Ryan with the first good laugh he has had in years.

We see by the papers that driving an automobile with one hand and holding a girl's knee with the other does not constitute negligence, according to ruling by full bench of the state supreme court. The decision confuses us somewhat. Was the driver, an Arlington man, by the way, supposed to be negligent in his attention to progress, or in the progress of his intention?

We hear a rumor to the effect that Franklin E. Wyman will shortly reopen a restaurant at the old stand on Massachusetts avenue opposite the Monument and that he intends to continue to operate his English Tavern. Hundreds of Arlingtonians will welcome the news, and we will even venture the opinion that Mr. Wyman's former competitors will not be displeased, either. If he continues his former practice, Mr. Wyman will serve good, clean food at fair prices, and that is good, clean, fair competition.

JUNIOR HIGH EAST WILL GIVE OPERETTA NEXT WEEK

suffice it to say that he was a kidnaper, both fierce and cruel. The story told in "The Beaver Trail" is that of the struggle between those two characters, with Kit Carson finally subduing the lawless Indian marauder.

With Eugene Leonard playing the part of the very ritualistic Generalissimo Don Castro de Furbelow and Alfred Correll the part of Emilio de Piccolo, the audience may be assured of a not too serious evening.

Depicting life in the neighborhood of the Mexican border about 1846. "The Beaver Trail" tells its story musically in two acts and four scenes. Several departments within the school are engaged in this production. Costuming is being done by the girls of the ninth grade, under the direction of Miss Forsyth; scenery by students in Miss Hilton's Art Department; stage management and properties by students under the direction of Miss Bourdon; construction by many enthusiastic young builders under Mr. Mott's direction; printing by students in Mr. Thompson's classes.

In conjunction with the operetta a poster contest is in progress and has been opened to all the students in the school. The contest closes January 19, and all posters, after having been judged, will be exhibited throughout the school and in store windows.

Two performances of "The Beaver Trail" will be given for the public. The first, a matinee on January 25, at 4:00 o'clock. The second, the evening performance, January 26, at 8:00 o'clock. All performances will be given in the auditorium of Junior High East. Tickets, which are at very nominal prices, may be obtained at the school or through any of the students.

Sixty-Five Years Ago This Week

Farmers gather what they sow, while seamstresses sew what they gather.

Another of those pleasant and enjoyable entertainments, which are given at the Unitarian church every two weeks, came off last Monday evening, and consisted of tableaux, singing, reading, etc., concluding with a laughable burlesque, "Show Your Ticket," which illustrated all the phases of grievances passengers have had with the railroad, filling columns of newspaper space, during the past month. The audience fairly roared when a lady, bearing a rag baby in her arms, deposited her burden with the gate-keeper, while she searched for her ticket, and then passed through the gate, leaving the baby in his arms.

The new ice houses, intended for the supply of the local trade were all filled from Spy Pond on Monday last, when the thermometer registered 18° below zero. Not for years has a crop of the present quality been harvested, and never at less cost. Ice should be cheap next summer.

To the People

The Arlington Ministers Association wish to avail themselves of the courtesy of the local papers to express their thanks to all who cooperated so helpfully when the Association conducted a religious census of the town in the fall.

May we urge everyone to seek out the churches in 1940 and worship on the Lord's Day, that so the spiritual lives of all may be nourished and materialism be discouraged among us.

Your Arlington ministers stand ready to serve the people of Arlington in any way they can. We offer our services to all as needed, and we ask any who desire the help or counsel of a minister of Christ not to hesitate to call upon us.

Dance and Drama Program Presented By Hackett-Aldrich School

Fourteen young people from Arlington, despite the inclement weather last Friday, January 12th, made a happy journey over to Waverley, to the Walter E. Fernald School, to present an interesting program of entertainment. From "The Prologue" recited by capable Audrey-Jane Hackett, to the last curtain dropped on the scene where the Fairy, Miss Barbara-Ann Howe, bid the audience farewell, it was a pleasing production.

The group sailed away under the tapping influence of rhythm by Carl Wilkins, Mary-Elizabeth O'Neill, Ruthie Foster, Jane Walworth and Anna Deacy. Master Sarkis Zartarian spoke a humorous piece about "Women that Powder Their Noses." This was followed by an intricate tap dance by Mary Coughlan, who later in the program danced a dainty bit as a Holly Bell. Tiny Marilyn Croft and Patty-Ann Cox each contributed a song and dance.

There were also the "Pajama babies" who crept off to bed with candles, to dream about the fairy who awakens all the dolls at midnight for a frolic. Joan McCarty appeared here. Janet McNeil was the sailor doll and Judith Zartarian the Black Sambo doll. Carol-Ann Lo Cascio recited a difficult dialect selection that left everyone in a happy mood.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST
"Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, January 21.
The Golden Text is: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son" (1 John 5:11).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; . . . for in him we live, and move, and have our being" . . . (Acts 17:24, 25, 28).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is divine Life, and Life is no more confined to the forms which reflect than substance is in its shadow. . . . Life is Mind, the creator reflected in His creations" (p. 331).

Episcopalians Hold Annual Meeting
Groups from this community represented local Episcopal churches yesterday at the 20th annual meeting of the Massachusetts Church Service League in the Cathedral church of St. Paul and Ford Hall, Boston. Men, women, and young people had their special meetings in addition to the mass meeting in Ford Hall.
Rev. Charles Taber Hall, rector of St. John's church, is assistant secretary of the Diocesan Convention. Rev. Warren N. Bixby of the Church of Our Saviour is secretary of the diocesan department of missions.
BAPTIST MEN PLAN TWO SUNDAY SESSIONS
Those who have heard of this large group of men are interested in seeing the class in its regular routine, and this is one of the reasons of the special meeting. Many other groups of men meeting in other churches at the same time would also like to hear the type of talks it receives from its teacher, therefore the meeting is open to all.
This service will be run as usual in the noon class with the exception of reports and business. In place of this, the class orchestra which now numbers 20 musicians made up of class members, playing every Sunday, will be presented to the public in a special musical program under the direction of Foster Brown. The orchestra was organized two years ago by William I. Huston and is now considered to be the largest of its kind doing church work.
Dr. Feagan has taken a timely subject for his talk: "The Greater Church of Tomorrow." Dr. Feagan, a speaker who is considered one of the Baptists' best, is at his very best when speaking to his men.
Invitations have been sent to civic and religious groups to attend and many have signified their intention of attending in groups.

Mrs. M. Dinkie and Ralph Cartullo were top scorers Friday evening at the weekly contract tournament held at the home of Mrs. J. Herbert Mead, 206 Appleton street. Mrs. Hall of Belmont and George Coffin were in second place. Third place winners were Mrs. Alice Golland and Mrs. M. Hopkins.
On Monday afternoon, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Hatch of Winchester received top honors. Mrs. Carl Fowler and her partner, Mrs. W. D. Storey placed second. Mrs. Walter Black and Mrs. J. Harding of Lexington were third place winners.

Marriage

MILLIGAN — HAYES

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graham Milligan have returned to their home in Somerville after an extended wedding trip by motor and are at home to their many friends.

Mrs. Milligan is the former Edna Mence Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Hayes of 32 Overlook road. She and Mr. Milligan were married on December 30 at St. John's Episcopal church by Rev. Charles Taber Hall in the presence of relatives and a few close friends. The double ring ceremony was used.

The bride wore pale blue lace with short matching veil and carried a bouquet of red and white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Marjorie L. Gardner, who wore a wisteria gown and turban and carried roses. David W. Magee was his brother-in-law's best man.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, attended by about thirty-five guests. It is interesting to note that the bridegroom's father, now deceased, was born in Arlington, his mother having been a native of Somerville.

Obituary

HENRY FRANK WILLIAMS

January 15 marked the death of Henry Frank Williams, who had made his home in this town for the past fourteen years. Mr. Williams was a retired cabinet-maker, having operated his own manufactory in Somerville since he came to this section forty years ago. Since the death of his wife, Selma, some three years ago, he had lived alone with his daughter, Miss Nina I. Williams, at 19 Windsor street.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon (Thursday) at 2:30 at the Hartwell Chapel, 792 Massachusetts avenue, and will be conducted by Rev. Nelson B. Baker, pastor of Trinity Baptist church. Burial will be in the family lot at Mt. Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

Mr. Williams was born in Norwich, Connecticut, eighty-one years ago, son of Henry and Mary (Hull) Williams. Besides Miss Nina Williams, he leaves another daughter, Mrs. Marion Stephens of Belmont, and two sons, Walter Williams of New York City and Lester Williams of Milton.

OBSERVATION under "HOLLYWOOD"

By Joseph Hoar
Douglas Fairbanks—Picture Pioneer

Douglas Fairbanks died on Tuesday, December 12, 1939, at the age of fifty-five. Great critics say he was a poor actor but the critics have been wrong before. The title, Douglas Fairbanks, Senior, as he is known by now, and was up until his death, only makes more evident the fact that he was a movie star of the past, not the present; because those who knew him hardly heard of his son. Today, however, few know him as well as they know his son, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., a popular idol in modern films. His day was in the past, his life in the history of the movies. By far the most athletic star of motion pictures, his silent "Robin Hood" is a more agile one than Errol Flynn's. His role of D'Artagnan in "The Iron Mask" and "The Three Musketeers" is also on a pedestal. "The Black Pirate" was another gay devil brought to life by Douglas Fairbanks. Yes, his day was in the days of the silent pictures. His former wife, Mary Pickford, who burst into tears at the news of his death, was a top star of yesterday in her own right. Their marriage was of love and not studio-born, for each had his or her own millions of fans and dollars, and did not need to stoop to such hum. When talkies came, Douglas Fairbanks went, as it were, "Around the World in Eighty Minutes," "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," and "The Adventures of Don Juan" were three of the few talkies he ever starred in. On the producing end he did the Don Juan epic and others, and he was one of the ones who kept United Artists Corporation alive when it almost went completely under in 1934.

Douglas Fairbanks is dead. His son is a fine actor and a handsome fellow, but he is not as dashing as his father was. For that matter, no one was ever as dashing as Douglas Fairbanks was, and just as sure as silent pictures are gone, Douglas Fairbanks is gone, never to be replaced.

"The Private Lives Of Elizabeth and Essex" Commences Today

Unfolded in bold, vivid, impressive technicolor will be "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," the story of a physically drab and colorless female crown-wearer. Reigning screen queen Bette Davis portrays superbly, the magnificent monarch while Errol Flynn is dangled fine. Hidden below the monstrously-lettered names of Flynn and Davis and the title is a little name, "Olivia De Havilland." That name shines also on the credits of "Gone With the Wind." That name carries both Titanic Technicolor epics by virtue of the artistry of the little lady who bears it. Erick Wolfgang Korngold, scorer of "Anthony Adverse" and "Robin Hood," handles the inspired music. Virile trooper Donald Crisp shines in a supporting role. Olivia's Opus.

Dead End Rats Dapper Up "On Dress Parade"

The Dead End Kids, all except Leo Gorcey, go for reform in a big way until John Little is satisfied. The film is "On Dress Parade," seen with the imposing "Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex." With Mr. Laughton's resurged "Beachcomber" is "Dramatic School" starring Paulette Goddard, Louise Rainer and Lana Turner.

MEN SEEN 200 MILES AWAY BY TELEVISION

Diagram—Artist's conception of how radio and aviation worked together to receive television images over a distance of 200 miles. The images were broadcast from New York and were received in an airplane over Washington, D. C. Photographic inset—This photograph, snapped in an airplane flying in the stratosphere four miles above Washington, shows a television image of another airplane at rest on the runway at North Beach Airport, New York.

TELEVISION in the stratosphere, more than four miles above Washington, D. C., made history Tuesday, October 17, when the Radio Corporation of America, with the cooperation of United Air Lines, demonstrated successful reception of images broadcast from New York, more than 200 miles to the north. The experiment marked the twentieth anniversary of the founding of RCA.

Flying over the nation's capital at an altitude of 21,600 feet, occupants of the plane, including Major General Delos C. Emmons, Chief of U. S. Army GHQ Air Force, saw David Sarnoff, president of RCA, and W. A. Patterson, president of JAL, who were seated in the television studios of the National Broadcasting Company in New York, as they exchanged comments on the parallel rise of the aviation and radio industries in the last two decades.

During the flight, what is probably the all-time long distance record for photography was made when cameramen in the plane over Washington snapped pictures of persons and objects in New York as they were broadcast by television.

Returning to New York from Washington, the plane landed at North Beach Airport, Long Island, for one of the most thrilling moments of the flight. For the last several minutes, occupants of the plane had been watching news reels and other motion pictures on the television receiver; but suddenly these stopped and in their place appeared the image of an airplane flying through the air.

Dramatically, the television announcer told the observers in the plane that they were watching their own ship as it circled the airport, dropped gracefully to the ground and taxied up the runway to the hangars. Actually, the men inside the plane watched it land just as if they had been standing all the while on the ground.

RCA's experiment of long distance television reception bore out the theory that the ultra-short radio waves used in television travel in straight lines, in order to receive the telecast over Washington, the plane had to rise above the 1600 foot level in order to overcome the curvature of the earth and keep within a straight line-of-sight path from the point of transmission.
